The crowning of the Homecoming Queen.

From the first roar of the kick off, to the last dance that night, Homecoming was another memorable event for the students. This year the pageantry of the parade through Muncie, gave fans and players alike unyielding spirit. The Redbirds did their best but their efforts were spoiled by a powerful Highland line. Defeat followed 32-20. Following the ballgame, students attended the dance in the gym. The alumni association presented trophies to the winners of the best floats.

The highlight of the evening was the crowning of Miss Terri Chalfant, homecoming queen of 1964. Terri's senior attendants were Sue Harris and Sandy Neal. The junior attendant was Judy Wright, the cute and fun-loving contender for next year's honors. The sophomore representative was Sue Constant, the gracious and pert, B-team cheerleader. Last but not least was Debby Hoover, popular freshman, and newcomer to Royerton.

Candidates enjoyed music while dancing with escorts.

President Marty Stamper posed with the F.H.A. Queen and her court.

"Swinging on a Heart" was chosen for the theme of the Sweetheart Ball held on February 6.

Sue Harris and Melinda Riggin were the senior representatives for the queen's court. Underclassmen representatives for the court were: juniors, Debbie Peterson and Carolyn Adams; sophomore, Susan Cates; freshman, Sherri Wright.

The highlight of the evening was the crowning of Sue Harris as queen and the naming of the princess, Debbie Peterson.

At one end of the dining hall was a huge heart framed in pink, red, and white roses. From the sides a chain of roses extended to a red velvet swing in front of the heart.

The evening ended with the grand march led by the queen, Sue Harris, and her escort.

Organizing, Writing, Editing

Jeep Brock, Panorama, editor-in-chief

The main duties of the Journalism staff are to edit the "Panorama" and the "Review."

Heading the crew for the Royerton "Panorama" is Jeep Brock. Among his duties are making layouts, cropping pictures, making headline captions and snapping pictures. Other members of the staff assisted Jeep in his duties.

The "Panorama" is the only half of the Journalism staffs' task. The other half is the Royerton "Review."

Heading the "Review" staff is Linda Zoll. Assisting her is Ray King. Among their duties are writing news stories, feature stories, drawing layouts and meeting necessary deadlines.

Aside from work on the "Panorama" and the "Review", the staff members scouted for good news, sponsored record hops, solicited ads, and sold cokes.

Administration

JOHN STEBBINS, Principal

The faculty and administration of any school must provide the necessary environment essential to an academic atmosphere. The teachers at RHS have equipped students with a frame of mind which should prompt satisfactory work in college or on the job.

The faculty sponsored field trips, college visitations, clubs, contests, and athletic teams. The extra hours donated by willing teachers have stimulated student interest in a much wider range of intellectual pursuits.

An interested faculty in student preparation and a wide range of testing have helped students understand their capabilities and limitations, thus preventing problems.

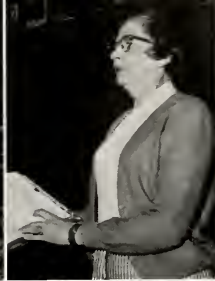

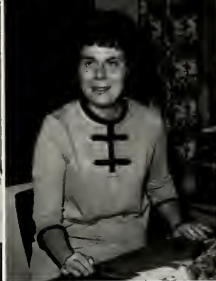

The past year has had the ear-marks of success. More students than ever before plan to go to college. This has shown the ability of the faculty to provide the mental stimulus necessary to prompt the able student into a higher degree of education.

In his first campaign at the Redbird helm, head football coach, Bob Harrold, did an admirable job. Although the team compiled only a 1-8 record, both the head coach and assistant coach Steve Lookabaugh instilled in the boys great spirit.

A lone win over Geveva highlighted the season. The fourteen seniors sparking the season were Rick Bettegnies, Rene Van Fleet, and Carle Leslie, tackles; Jeep Brock, fullback; Carl Leach, Joe Booher, Dick Turner, and Dan Modlin, guards; Pat Ertle, center; Ted Dixon, end; Terry Taylor, Terry Klingensmith, and Dennis Stewart, halfbacks; and Scot Fisher, quarterback.

Ted Dixon was a first team MVC choice with Rene Van Fleet, Dick Turner, Carl Leach, and Scot Fisher receiving honorable mention.

With eleven letter winners returning next season, the coaching staff and student body hope to see the Redbird eleven compile a much better record.

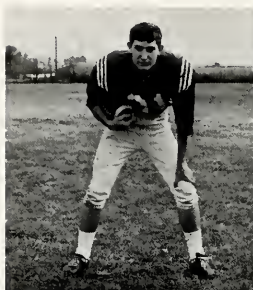

It's Ted again

Matmen Met Stiff Competition

For the first time in seven years, the Redbirds were able to participate in the active sport of wrestling. With a rookie squad and a young coach, the Redbird grapplers matched talents with some of the state's best contenders. Senior members of the squad included Terry Taylor, Rick Bettegnes, Rene Van Fleet, and Steve Boggs.

The Pom Pon Corp entertained with dazzling halftime shows.

Majorette SHERYL STEBBINS

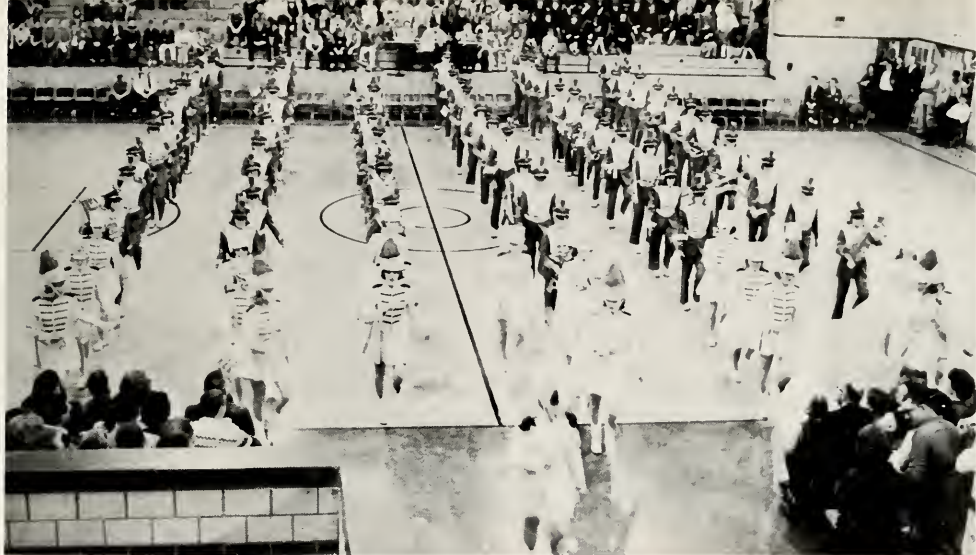

Under the direction of Mr. Jolliffe, the high school band has rehearsed for their many and various half-time performances. Many strenuous hours were spent in perfecting the routines and formations of the band. The beginning of the band's participation came during the football season. High steps and high kicks were performed in the cold weather, as freezing twirlers and Pom Pons kept a smile on their faces.

More instrumentalists, glistening costumes, and red pom pons were displayed throughout the basketball season. The drum majorette, Sheryl Stebbins, directed, and led the band in various formations on the playing floor.

Talent, cooperation, and hard work provided a solid nucleus for the music department.

Singing for convocations, special programs and engagements, and for personal enjoyment were 50 members of the Robed Choir. The Robed Choir, under the direction of Treva Riggin, brought many honors to Royerton. They performed for several church festivals, civic organizations, and clubs. In addition, they attended the district contest at Ball State University.

The Que Seras, one of the three special groups, was organized this year. This group was organized by the senior girls who wished to develop their singing ability.

The Pace Setters, another singing group, was organized by the senior boys. They showed great talent and ability in music through receiving high honors at district and state contests. The third group specially organized this year was the Selectones. This organization consisted of students in high school whose ability to read music was shown through auditions.

It has become a tradition of the Latin Club to have an annual club initiation for all new members. Already initiated members found much excitement this year in planning a different type of initiation. Here everyone, members as well as initiated, are shown attired in Roman costumes. Costumes were of quaint Roman design and material prepared by each member to add a spirit which was ever so present at the great Roman Banquets of old. There were those who chose to appear as knights with their armor, which was such a part of the Roman custom. The decorations were quite simple. There were a few pieces of Roman furniture, which had been sprayed with gold to add some richness to the surroundings. Other decorations used were fancy cushions to create the true likeness of what the Romans themselves would have been accustomed. Romans were always seated on cushions on the ground before partaking of any food served at the Banquets. So in keeping with the customs of long ago all members joined in to make everything a grand Roman affair.

Senora Werner instructs several eager Spanish students. The earphones, she feels, are necessary since the students hear Spanish from a true Spanish speaker. In this way, the students can filter out the meaning much easier.

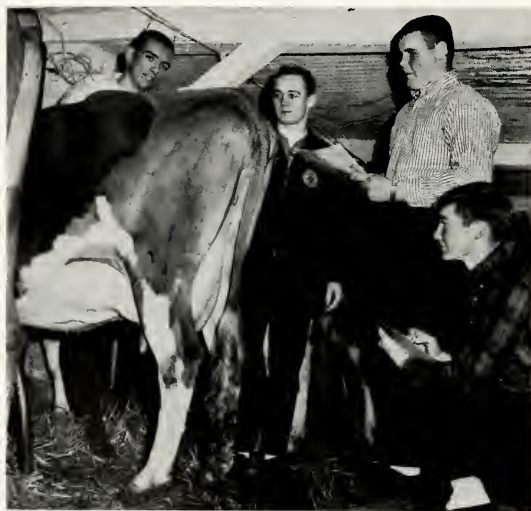

Here we see two members of the Spanish Club receiving candy to sell. Profits from the sale of candy will help pay the costs of a trip to Mexico City. The trip will be taken this spring after school is dismissed.
